

TEA TIME Collection - designed by Studio Salaris

This Suar wooden collection is available in three tables of various sizes that can be used together or individually. The name comes from the small handles that, as for the trays of the most elegant Anglo-Saxon high tea, are at the same time decorative and functional. The tapered and rounded shape is turned from a single block of wood. Suar wooden coffee tables with a conical shape suitable for creating a set together with the other two of the Tea Time collection or alone, to complete the furniture in a garden or terrace.

Studio Salaris

Studio Salaris was born in the historic centre of Milan, capital of design.

Founder Alessandra Salaris topped her classical education with the study of interior design in London and Milan, where she attended IED and graduated from Politecnico di Milano. She later earned a Masters degree in Marketing and Communication to better understand the challenges of the business she faces everyday. As of today, she has worked internationally. In the past decade she has collaborated with the top magazines and companies of the industry. Her ambition has always been that of delivering a customized support to help her clients achieve an aesthetic expression of their brands. Her mission is to give a personal and recognizable contribution that enhances the clients' story and core values.
